DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 16 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

There is no antecedent basis for the inner or outer cup "rim" recited in the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-8, 14, 19, 20 and 22-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Patterson et al. in view of Johnson.

There is disclosed in Patterson a receptacle comprising an outer cup 30, 66, an inner cup 32, 68 nested in the outer cup, and ingredient chamber located between the nested outer and inner cups, and one or more ports (apertures in a bottom wall of the inner cup which make up filter 34, or slots in the side wall of the inner cup which make up filter 70) to permit flow of liquid between the inner cup and the ingredient chamber, wherein the cups are axially movable relative to one another so as to exert a squeezing action on an ingredient in the ingredient chamber to assist in the mixing or infusing of the ingredient with a liquid contained in the receptacle.

Johns discloses an infusion device wherein an outer member 2 is nested with an inner member 1 having a liquid port 4 for the flow of liquid between the two members and an ingredient chamber is formed between the two nested members, wherein threads 5, 7 provide a coupling of the members together and an axial movement relative to one another so as to exert a squeezing action on an ingredient in the ingredient chamber to assist in mixing or infusing the ingredient with a liquid.

It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to provide the receptacle of Patterson with the thread members taught in Johnson, in order to prevent the cups from being disconnected and to allow for locking of the inner cup in specific positions within the outer cup.

In regards to claim 19, the cup being transparent or translucent is an obvious matter of design choice. One skilled in the art could chose such materials for the purpose of allowing the user to observe the brewing process.

Claim 21 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the prior art as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Amberg et al.

Amberg discloses that it is old and well known to use stacking shoulders within a stackable cup to prevent the cups from jamming when nested together.

It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to provide the inner cup of Patterson, as modified by Johnson, with the stacking shoulders taught in Stephen, in order to prevent jamming of cups when nested together.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 9-13, 15, 17 and 18 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claim 16 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The patents to Gonsalves, Mikkelsen, Feeney and Ellis are cited for their disclosure of the state of the art.
